MISS JULIA RIVE has received a letter from the Vice President of the New York Philharmonic Society, congratulating her upon her success, and informing her that, in his opinion, her talents are superior to those of any foreign pianist ever in America.

THE body of a man was found floating in the river at the foot of Horne street yesterday morning by Josiah Holt, watchman for the Fertilizer Company. The Coroner's jury found the case to be one of drowning, but it could not decide whether accidental or otherwise.

THE watch presentation to Mr. T. C. Campbell, which was announced in THE STAR some days since, took place at Aug. 6 Saturday evening. Of course, Mr. Campbell was surprised, and had not expected anything of the kind, but he managed to control his feelings and make a nice little speech which, considering that it was entirely impromptu, was quite a success.

THE storm of Saturday afternoon blew the skylight of No. 110 West Sixth street, lifted the roof from Mr. S. Beresford's brick house on Spring Grove avenue, damaged three of Mr. Burkhardt's new houses on Mt. Auburn, blew the cross from the spire of St. George's Catholic Church on Vine-street hill, dropped a number of signs on the pavement, and besides brought a plentiful harvest to the batters of the city.

ST. PETER'S P. E. CHURCH, at the corner of Main street and Hamilton road, was dedicated yesterday. The procession was very large and imposing, and consisted of members of the old church and from other churches. The dedication ceremonies were conducted by Reverend Pohlmeier. Speeches were made during the day by Pastors Schroder, of Bridgeport, Miller, of Carthage, Hermann, of Hamilton, Schultz, of Covington, Pohlmeier, Kuester, Vos and Kaemmerer, of this city.

JOHN HEINAN, employed on the canal boat Robert Burns, about six o'clock yesterday evening, at the elbow of the canal, after a playful scuffle with Elmore Williams, knocked the latter down, and jumping upon him, stamped him in the face with his heavy boots. Williams' injuries may probably prove fatal. He was taken to the Hospital. Heinan was arrested by Patrolman Williamson and taken to the Ninth-street Station-house. In the Police Court this morning his case was continued until Saturday.

"BUG" MULLANEY, last night about 10 o'clock, went into Mrs. Davis' saloon, opposite the C. & H. depot, and found two brothers named Connolly talking to Mrs. Davis and her daughter. "Bug" walked into the back room, and returning with a butcher-knife, after a few words with the brothers, with whom he had formerly had some trouble, cut Ed. Connolly several times in the face, inflicting severe but not dangerous wounds. Mullanev, after the cutting, ran away and escaped.

AUGUST DIEHM plunged a butcher-knife into his own breast on Saturday afternoon, and died holding in his hand an insurance policy upon his life. He lived at 71 Brown street, and had led a drunken, wretched sort of life, abusing his wife and six children, and frequently threatening his own life. In the afternoon Saturday he procured a butcher-knife at a saloon near by, and, returning home, commenced to beat his wife. Officer Nietert was sent for by the neighbors, and when he arrived Diehm was seated on the bed, reading an insurance policy. Nietert told him he must go with him to the Station-house. He replied that he would as soon as he read the paper he held. The officer turned to the wife to ask her some question, when Diehm suddenly plunged the butcher-knife (which he had kept concealed) into his own breast, and died in a few moments. The knife having penetrated his heart. The Coroner held an inquest and returned a verdict in accordance with the facts stated.

THE FUNERAL of the late George E. Stearns took place at Madisonville yesterday, and was largely attended by parties from this city and by nearly all of Madisonville, his late home. He was highly respected by those who knew him, both as a friend and acquaintance and as member of the legal fraternity.

As an Odd-fellow he stood in the first rank of the Order. He was Grand High Priest elect of the Encampment branch of the Order, and was to have been installed at the session of that body at Greenville, O., during the present week. He was also Grand Conductor of the Grand Lodge of Ohio. The funeral ceremony was preached by Rev. H. H. of Springfield, Ohio, and was largely attended—being the largest funeral ever witnessed in Madisonville. The funeral ceremonies were conducted by the Odd-fellows of his lodge. A special train, on the M. & C. R. R., carried out about three hundred members of the Order from this place, including many members of the Grand Lodge and Grand Encampment.

At this distance I can not pronounce her beautiful—scarcely pretty. Her face was stained yellow, except the cheeks and forehead, which, with the parting in her hair, were a bright red. Her earrings of iron hoops, and shell pendants, were so large and heavy that they had torn slits an inch long in the cartilage. Her feet were small, and encased in moccasins worked in fancifully colored porcupine quills; while her brown arms and hands were adorned with bands of brass. She wore a robe that is somewhat celebrated in these parts, on account of the peculiar elk teeth that adorned it. Only two of this kind may be found in the mouth of that animal, and she has many hundred displayed in rude but unique and singularly pretty embroidery.

Canku was so exceedingly quiet and modest in demeanor as she sat before me, that my brain was filled with romantic fancies, until I observed her remove from the wrappings of tissue paper and boldly intrude into her mouth an unmistakable bit of apothecary's chewing gum. Not in any of our provincial seminaries could it have been more thoroughly and intently masticated; but its inopportune appearance effectually interrupted my reveries.

I asked Spotted Tail how many ponies he demanded for Canku, and he replied, wakemca (ten); and my guide informed me that he desired to find her a good husband among the whites, of whom there are many living with the Indians, each possessing two or more squaws, whose rations and annuities, with the profits they realize in a brisk trade in robes, robes and pelts, sustain and clothe them. They are almost invariably French, at least by descent—a species of illiterate, uncouth sharpers, who had easy victims among the Indians.

Two brothers named Gaff have established a mammoth henry in Colorado, ten miles from Denver. It covers about four acres, which is laid out like a village, with streets and avenues along which are built long rows of houses of various designs. Regular families of hens are assigned to these houses, and it is found that they quickly domesticate themselves without troubling their neighbors. The population of the village is about 2,000, divided closely into social cliques of Brahams, Cochins, Shanghais and Borkings, and the chief products are eggs and spring chickens. Sundays included, the industrious matrons of the village turn out daily from forty to fifty dozens of eggs, which are sold in Denver for from thirty to fifty cents a dozen. The brothers Gaff express but one single regret, and that is that they did not found their colony fifteen years ago, when eggs brought $5 a dozen, and a spring chicken was worth a pennyweight of gold dust.

The number of immigrants to the West is something unprecedented this year. Since March 1 nearly 9,300 left Omaha, Nebraska.

I. O. O. F.—Odd-fellows' Protective Association.—Assessment due on death of Brother George E. Stearns, of No. 10.
